REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS

In presenting to the Congregational Education Society their Eighty-eighth Annual Report, the Directors announce a year of vigorous activity in all departments of educational work.

In the department of Student Aid, 181 young men studying for the Christian ministry have received grants amounting to $8,836. This is an increase of nineteen over last year.

During the year a legacy was received, the income of which is to be used in aiding any young man seeking a Christian education. This is the beginning of a fund which, if increased, will allow the Society to offer financial assistance to needy and worthy young men, even though not preparing for the ministry.

Two colleges have been added to the list: Redfield, South Dakota, and French-American, Springfield, Massachusetts. Redfield College has united with the Wilton German-American College of Iowa, making a strong institution, with special courses for the large German population now rapidly settling in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa. This new college will offer the best possible instruction to a people in political and religious sympathy with us, a people who have been trained to seek the highest educational advantages for their youth. In time it should be one of the leading collegiate institutes of the West.

The French-American College is also doing special work among our foreign population. Representatives of fourteen nationalities are among the students. The changes now going on in New England, sixty-six per cent of whose population is foreign born, call for the planting of Christian schools, especially adapted to meet the needs of these new citizens. The Directors feel that the time has arrived for a forward move in educational lines for the peoples of other tongues and dissimilar political faiths who are now making their homes with us.

Twenty academies have been helped this year, and they report largely increased attendance. In two instances where dormitory accommodations were lacking, the students lived in tents. These academies are not intended to take the place of the public high schools, but are for the most part in rural districts west of the Mississippi River, and provide educational opportunities to students who are beyond the high school age. They are also Christian schools, though not sectarian, and religious influences are predominant. The Bible has a regular place in the curriculum. Revivals of religion are of frequent occurrence, and young people are thus sent forth into the new towns and cities ready to make their lives tell for righteousness.

The West feels the need of such schools, and the frequent appeals for aid received from institutions recently founded indicate that this line of work must be carried on for many years to come.

The call for aid from institutions of this class in the South, and the fact that the Education Society had already established a theological seminary in Atlanta, Georgia, led the Directors to consider the question of the relation of the Education Society to the Southern educational problem, inasmuch as the American Missionary Association was already in the South doing a large and valuable educational work among the Negroes and Mountain Whites. A conference was sought with the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association, in the interests of comity. As the result of repeated interviews, it was agreed that the American Missionary Association should take the Atlanta

Theological Seminary under its care. The success of this seminary has proved the Christian statesmanship of the Education Society, for it meets a great need in the South, and will, in a few years, make its power felt.

The third new institution to be taken on the list is the Chicago Theological Seminary. This seminary found itself cramped for means to sustain its large foreign departments that were organized to meet the needs of the Danish, Swedish, Norwegian, and German populations in the Northwest. These people take kindly to Congregationalism, and a ministry must be raised up from their own people to supply the demand for pastors of new churches. During the last year the Society contributed towards the salaries of three professors in these departments, satisfied that this new, important work would receive the commendation of the churches of our order.

The recent revelations of the character and aim of Mormonism have been a sufficient justification of the policy of the Education Society in Utah. Our schools, situated in the smaller towns, are the only centers of Christian influence in a large area, and are doing a work as important as that carried on in foreign lands. Opposition to our mission schools is determined and persistent. Parents are urged by church authorities to remove their children from the schools; thus from time to time the attendance falls off. But the value of our work is not measured by the number on our school rolls. To abandon points long held would leave the Mormons in undisputed sway. Greater efforts and larger appropriations should be made to wage a more aggressive, spiritual, moral, and intellectual warfare, for the sake of our republic and the kingdom of Christ. One new school has been opened in a village far removed from the railroad, and the appeal comes for a Christian academy. The number of schools in Utah is seven.

In New Mexico we have practically a foreign missionary work, for two-thirds of the population speak a foreign tongue, and their habits, prejudices, and views of life generally are entirely un-American. The six schools of the Society in New Mexico are in small villages in rural regions, and our teachers are generally the only English-speaking people in the entire district. The schools, which consist of the primary and the lower grammar grades, are held in adobe huts. To complete the system, an industrial and training school should be opened in order to furnish the higher grades and supply teachers for the pupils of their own race. The Society has an option on a large ranch not far from Albuquerque, and has raised sufficient money to pay for it. It is hoped that the friends of the Society will come forward with generous gifts to thoroughly equip the school and provide an adequate teaching force. The patriotic appeal of this work in New Mexico is particularly strong just now, in view of the desire of that territory for statehood. Educational efforts put forth now will therefore be especially timely.

Turning now from the field to the administration of the work, the Directors report that, after long and painstaking consideration, changes in the constitution and the rules for the Board of Directors were made, and adopted at a special meeting of the Society held in April.

Two Directors, long identified with the Society, resigned during the year: Rev. DeWitt S. Clarke, D.D., of Salem, to accept a membership on the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association of New York, and Rev. C. H. Beale, D.D., of Roxbury, who removed to Milwaukee, Wisconsin. These two gentlemen had for years been punctual and efficient members of the Board of Directors, giving freely of their time and wisdom to the deliberation of its affairs. Their resignations were reluctantly accepted. Their places were filled by Rev. Charles W. Huntington, D.D., of Lowell, and Rev. Harris G. Hale, of Brookline.

In the department of support, the Society has to depend on the services of the secretary whose field of presentation covers New England, the Middle and Southern States. The Western Field Secretary, Rev. Theodore Clifton, represents the work to the churches west of Buffalo. It is thus evident that thousands of our churches will rarely hear by word of mouth the cause of the Education Society. The Directors, therefore, at the beginning of the year, very wisely called upon Miss Honora DeBusk, a teacher in New Mexico, to assist the secretary by public addresses. She has had more calls than she could meet, and her work has been commended by some of the leading pastors of our country, and her services are eagerly sought.

Inasmuch as the Society has no magazine, it has to rely for its literature upon the printed leaflets and the Congregational Work. The amount of printed matter sent out has been larger this year than ever before. Rev. James H. Ross, our press agent, has been able to secure a wide circulation in the daily press of all matter put into his hands by the Secretary, in relation to the work of the Society.

A word should be said as to the relation of the Society to the other home societies of our denomination. In these days of suggestion as to the closer union of our various missionary organizations, it is pleasant for the Directors to state that the Education Society recognizes the home work as one, and it has worked in close harmony with all our home societies. The home missionary superintendents on the field act as advisers of the Society in selecting teachers and strategic points to be occupied. Some of the principals of our academies and schools are also home missionary pastors. The Church Building Society owns some of the buildings in which our schools are held. The Sunday School and Publishing Society generously provides Bibles, Lesson Helps, and literature for our mission schools; and the conferences with the American Missionary Association, relating to the field to be occupied, prevent duplication of effort and secure economy in administration. Thus the Education Society acts in perfect harmony with all the others, and gratefully acknowledges the help received from them. A practical union of the home work exists, which if it were more fully known would receive the cordial indorsement of the churches.

In closing, it may be said that the Education Society is to be congratulated upon the thorough work performed and upon the outlook of increased usefulness along all educational lines, and it should receive largely increased donations from the churches to carry on new work.

REPORT OF REV. THEODORE CLIFTON, D.D.,

Western Field Secretary

The year began with a trip to New England, early in June, to represent the Education Society at the annual meeting of the Congregational Home Missionary Society at Providence, the Woman's Home Missionary Union of Vermont at their annual meeting at Burlington, and in the First and Franklin Street Churches of Manchester, New Hampshire. The Sunday in Manchester was followed by personal work for Windom Institute at Montevideo, Minnesota, resulting in financial help and the winning of new friends for that institution. In the same way ten other institutions on the Society's list have been assisted financially, among them the newly projected Industrial School at Albuquerque. Most of this work, going from man to man to solicit funds, has been done between Sundays, while in transit from place to place to present the general cause of the Education Society in the stronger pulpits of the West, and in this way much distress has been relieved and strength imparted.

During the year three special campaigns have been conducted, one in Wisconsin for Ashland Academy, another in Nebraska to further the interests of the Academy Endowment Fund in that state, and the third in Missouri for the academies of the Southwest. On this trip sufficient money was procured, most of it in St. Louis, to pay all debts on Iberia Academy and to put its property in first-class condition for the opening of the institution at the beginning of the new school year.

For the purpose of looking after the interests of the different institutions on the ground, and in response to urgent appeals from trustees and friends, several schools have been visited, among them Ashland Academy in Wisconsin, Franklin in Nebraska, Iberia and Willow Springs in Missouri, Rogers in Arkansas, and Redfield College in South Dakota. The object of these visits and their results have been as varied as the local conditions and needs of the institutions themselves. At Rogers a movement was set on foot to pay a total indebtedness of $7,714, and already the result is more than half accomplished. When this task is completed, the three academies surrounding Drury College will all be entirely free from debt and on the high road to a still greater prosperity. At present, including the academy in connection with the college, the four Southwestern academies have in them an aggregate of more than eight hundred students, and they are growing constantly. The visit to Redfield was to represent the Education Society in furthering the union of Wilton and Redfield Colleges, now happily an accomplished fact, and probably the most important event of the year in the Western field.

The Michigan campaign of education for young people along missionary lines, in the month of January, inaugurated in the East, was a new feature in the work of the year and an experiment. The Education Society was represented at the meetings in Detroit, Port Huron, and Grand Rapids. While the attendance at these meetings was small, the interest was good, and the work of all the societies was doubtless advanced.

In the midst of this campaigning and all special work for institutions, the general interests of the Education Society have not been neglected. Local and state associations, so far as possible to reach them, have been attended; and when impossible to be present, other speakers have been procured, so far as practicable, to represent the Society and speak in its behalf. Every Sunday, with probably one or two exceptions, has been devoted to the presentation of the Society's broad and growing work, and its general interests, both in the office and out, have been conserved.

Besides the regular work of the Western office, particular pains have been taken during the year to make the Society better known to its constituency. For this purpose an unusual amount of literature has been distributed, including about two thousand annual reports sent to as many pastors, accompanied by a personal letter and a tabulated statement of gifts during the past ten years. This effort has been rewarded by increased interest in the Society and by a growing disposition on the part of pastors and churches to remember its work with annual contributions.

There is a growing conviction in the West that the Education Society, with its many institutions and many-sided work, is second to none in importance. There is also a growing approval of the Society's present spirit and methods as they become better understood and its work more widely known, all of which promises well for the future.

COLLEGES AND ACADEMIES

The Christian college and academy have a distinct place in the evangelistic work of the Christian church.

The burden on Mr. Moody's heart towards the end of his life was "my schools." Jonathan Edwards, Edward Griffin, Charles Finney, William Stearns, Julius H. Seelye, William J. Tucker, George Harris, Henry Hopkins, W. H. P. Faunce, gave up the pastoral and evangelistic work to become presidents of colleges. The testimony of sister denominations in the West is that they cannot depend on the state universities to furnish preachers for their churches. The state university cannot in the nature of the case emphasize the religious elements in education, nor give a place to the Bible in the courses of instruction.

On the other hand, Christian colleges and academies can do both freely. They send forth youth with Christian ideals which become the dominant forces in maintaining law, sobriety, civil righteousness. Newly forming communities, into which come the immigration from foreign lands and the settlers from other states, need to hear a constant statement of the fundamental principles of righteousness. The moral atmosphere in which states live their best life has to be created and sustained. This is largely done by Christian schools.

The Education Society helps colleges and academies in their beginnings and early years, but constantly encourages them to become self-supporting and independent. They are kept upon the list of beneficiaries no longer than is absolutely necessary; the aim is to throw them back more and more upon a local constituency for support. Sometimes schools are cut adrift earlier, according to the opinion of those in charge, than is wise; but experience has proved that this course is salutary; and a long list of strong, well-equipped colleges in the West justifies the policy.

These growing institutions offer an appeal to men of wealth who are conscientiously seeking worthy objects upon which to bestow their benevolence. They become permanent sources of patriotism and spiritual power in the state.

The Education Society carefully scrutinizes the claims of these schools and does not hesitate to withdraw or withhold financial aid when satisfied that the money would be better bestowed elsewhere. On the other hand, it remains the friend of all schools having peculiar and long-continued struggles with poverty, but which give promise of permanence. The Society during the year added two promising colleges to its list. Redfield College, South Dakota, which by uniting the Wilton-German College of Iowa will take first rank as a German-American College, now opens its doors to the great German populations of North Dakota, South Dakota, and northern Nebraska. The second institution is the French-American college of Massachusetts. The large manufacturing cities of New England, the prosperous lumber towns of northern New Hampshire and Vermont, are drawing together compact communities of French, Armenians, and Greeks. The youth of these nationalities do not go to Amherst, Dartmouth, Williams, or Bowdoin, except in rare instances. The French-American College has an admirable fitting department for foreign students who have not had the secondary training of American youth, and carries them forward into the college classes.

The appeal of this important college is impressive, and the Education Society particularly commends it to the good will of New England churches.

Fairmount College, Wichita, Kansas

The last year was one of general prosperity and progress. The attendance of students in the college classes was the largest in our history, eighty-six in the four classes. The Faculty was slightly increased in the number of teachers, and much strengthened in efficiency, but without adding to the current expense account. The library continued to grow, the accessions of books numbering 2,133, substantially all secured without expense to the college beyond transportation charges. The library now contains over 22,000 bound books and some 10,000 pamphlets. A special want of the library is a few hundred dollars with which to bind these magazines and pamphlets, and thus make their valuable contents readily accessible to students. The library is practically the general laboratory of the college, its treasures in constant and eager use by students, teachers, and citizens.

Before another annual statement to the Society a fine new library building for the permanent housing of our literary treasures is expected to be erected, our present quarters being both unsafe and wholly inadequate in space.

The organization of systematic study of the Bible, under the direction of a thoroughly competent Biblical scholar and instructor, has proved eminently successful; such study is required of all academy students and of the Freshman and Sophomore classes. Advanced Bible study is elective in the upper classes. Students are examined and graded in their Bible studies the same as in Latin, mathematics, and science. Bible study is becoming popular in the institution.

The general religious tone of the college is excellent. A devout Christian is the leader of the college football team. Six young men, including the leader in football, contemplate the Christian ministry. Enthusiastic and efficient work is done by the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Every successive year witnesses the practical heightening of the standard of intellectual training and scholarship of the institution. This fact, coupled with increased religious prosperity, is the best evidence of healthy life in the college, and the most satisfactory prognostic of its future career.

During the year the Chicago University has invited the college to enter into close relations with the university under the term "affiliation." The expected advantages offered the college would be opportunities for free graduate study at the university for all teachers of the college, frequent inspection of our courses of study and the quality of our work by experts in pedagogy from the university, the prestige of the university naturally attaching to a college under such relations, the loaning of books and apparatus to the college, the temporary supply of teachers, lecturers, etc. The college authorities have as yet made no definite reply to these overtures, and are undecided whether such relations with the great school by the lake are desirable. But the fact that such overtures have been made us, followed by a careful inspection of the college by a representative of the university, and his favorable report, is certainly a high compliment to the young school.

The trustees have recently entered on the task of raising the large sum of $300,000 for the better equipment of the college. Of this sum it is proposed to add $135,000 to the permanent fund, apply $75,000 to the erection of two greatly needed dormitories and $50,000 to the erection of the library building, and expend the remainder in refitting the college buildings, providing scientific apparatus, etc. The period in which to raise this large sum extends to January 1, 1906. Certain large gifts are in sight and full success is probable. Kansas is expected to provide $50,000 of the amount. Representatives of the college are now hard at work canvassing the home field. Pledges and gifts are unconditional, each subscription being payable at the time of making it or at a stated period. A dormitory for men to cost $25,000 without furnishings is in process of construction — an Eastern friend having given a sum of money sufficient for a good beginning.

What patriotic friend of Christian learning, reading these lines, will supply the means for completing this structure, and thus permanently identify himself or herself with an institution sure in the future to grow into splendid proportions and vast influence for good throughout a great section of the country? Seven hundred and fifty thousand people now have their homes within one hundred miles of the college; the number is daily growing and soon to be a million.

The French-American College, Springfield, Massachusetts

The French-American College was founded in 1885. The original members of its corporation were the then seven Congregational ministers of Lowell. Its avowed aim was the liberal education of the Canadian French for the gospel ministry. Just what it should attempt to be was discussed with great deliberation, and it was decided definitely and explicitly not to establish a secondary school, but a college which should rank with Amherst and Williams. It was well understood that there were no Canadian French ready for college, but that a preparatory school should be established to fit them for the recognized four years' college course. In 1892 a woman's department was established, and in 1894 the college sent out its first graduate.

In the early 90's other races began to come in, and the institution has become polyglot, there having been 22 different races represented in it from the beginning, 14 nationalities during the last year. Of the 114 students during last year, 34 were Italian, 20 Canadian French, 3 continental French, 1 Swiss French, 25 were Armenians, 10 Greeks, 10 Bulgarians, 3 Syrians, 2 English Canadian, 1 Spanish, 1 Nova Scotian, 1 Japanese, 1 Pole, and 2 American. Of the 114, 26 were young women.

The need of this unique institution is found in the enormous immigration, not only from Quebec, but from the southern and eastern parts of Europe, by which it has come about that more than 65 per cent of Massachusetts are of foreign parentage, in Rhode Island 64.2, in New York 59.2. The disparity between the native and foreign elements is rapidly increasing. In Massachusetts 12,000 more die annually than are born of the native stock, while the foreign increase is 75,000. Two million have immigrated to this country since the census of 1900 was taken. Of last year's immigration, 80 per cent came from Southern and Eastern Europe and Asia — Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic, and Mohammedan countries. There are four states in the Union whose population is less than that which came from Italy alone last year, 230,632.

The theory of the college is that the forces which have made us New Englanders what we are, if applied adequately to these newcomers, will Christianize and Americanize them, and render them helpful to a noble future. A Christian education which shall raise up a ministry of the gospel, a ministry of healing, a ministry of justice, a ministry of instruction, and shall build up Christian homes, is the one agency equal to existing necessities.

The public schools may furnish people of every race with the elementary education requisite for the ordinary exigencies of life, but we have never relied upon public schools for liberally educated Christian leadership. The public school cannot teach religion. A special school for the work in question is indispensable. Existing academies are not doing it. The Canadian French, now numbering 600,000 in New England and New York, have been here in great numbers for twenty-five years. The institutions of Christian education have not reached them. The fifty-three colleges in the North Atlantic division of states make no impression on the million and a half of Italians and multitudes of other races whose conditions are similar. Here is a great work of a missionary nature to be aggressively done. If we would maintain the Christian and the moral primacy of New England, we must do something to meet this large majority of the people vigorously and effectively. That other institutions can do this work is a superficial notion disproved by experience. There are certain linguistic and literary needs, certain religious needs, which the institutions which have sprung out of American life and are adapted to native Americans cannot meet. The liberally educated Frenchman must know the French language and literature, in order to be effective as a leader among his own people, as well as he would know it in his own country. Other institutions teach only a reading knowledge of the language, but he must learn to use it in conversation, in writing, in public address, clearly and forcibly. On the other hand, the liberally educated Frenchman here must know the English language and literature; he must be able to use it clearly and forcefully in writing and in public address. He must be immersed in its literature, as is an American. In the acquisition of a vocabulary and in the extensive use of the idioms, he must be drilled by extended practice and writing, such as is afforded by no college or university elsewhere.

Again, in no other institution is adequate training in the English Bible provided. An eight years' course, four years in the preparatory school and four in the college, are here furnished. The value of this cannot be overestimated. Beyond this, the adjustment of the religious teaching in other academies and colleges is to the average American mind. It assumes the possession of certain ideas and ideals which are not to be found in the mind of a foreigner. Therefore it is found that a largely modified curriculum of study, equal in its disciplinary value to that of other colleges, but having special practical uses, must be provided for those who are going to lead these races into a just and helpful share in our Christian national life.

Of course it has been a long process to develop out of somewhat unpromising material an institution of respectable college rank, but it has been done. There have been about 590 in the school since its foundation; most of these have stayed from one to three years, and have gone forth greatly benefited. Twenty-one have taken the entire college course. We have sent several at the end of the sophomore year to other institutions. Those who have graduated from us have gone to professional schools, and found themselves readily ranking with graduates of other colleges. Eleven have gone through or are in theological schools. Three are studying law. Two are in business, and the rest are teaching. Of these graduates, not more than one or two when they came to us had any idea of what was involved in going through college. The great work done for these people is to change their ideals and to kindle their aspirations to make the most of themselves in the service of God and their fellowmen.

For several years as many students have been admitted as there has been room for. The institution needs endowment, buildings, and equipment of every kind. The field we look upon is white and ready for the harvest, but our laborers are few. Who will help us adequately to equip a sufficient number?

Kingfisher College, Kingfisher, Oklahoma

Kingfisher, the youngest college in the list of the Society, opens its tenth year, the third since the Society recognized the institution as a college, with prospects better than formerly. The year is marked by certain significant events:

1. The near completion of the campaign for Dr. Pearson's gift to the endowment. A few more generous pledges will bring the end of this arduous task and give new courage to the friends of the school and greater usefulness to the institution.

2. The enrollment this year counts a larger proportion of college students proper than ever before, also a larger proportion of the preparatory students are taking regular courses looking to entering college.

3. The department of music has gained much by the coming of an Eastern teacher in voice and piano. A new class of students has been reached thereby. Heretofore those of our people who desired high-class instruction in music have felt it necessary to leave Oklahoma for their study. Quite a number have this summer turned their attention toward Kingfisher, and a goodly proportion have enrolled with us this fall.

4. Feeling that the well-to-do are provided for, the trustees of this institution have always sought to reach the poor boy and girl who must work for a living while in school. Such small industries as can readily be inaugurated are already in operation. A very general shortage in the crops of Oklahoma has made the call for students to do outside work especially insistent. Twenty-five letters asking such opportunity have been received this summer. It has been a source of intense regret that we cannot provide work for all. A plan is being formulated for the purchase of considerable land adjoining the college grounds, with a view to furnishing work for a greater number. It is not necessary to teach our young people to work. The purpose is to furnish work to all who desire to earn enough to pay their way through school. The plan has created a good deal of interest and may be expected to develop.

The needs of the college do not grow less. It will require a good deal of help in order to launch the enterprise above mentioned. There is a need of water works and a heating plant. Permanent seating for the college chapel should be supplied. Increased library and facilities for teaching science are always in demand.

But most of all we need the prayers of Christian people and the continued gracious favor of God, which has seemed thus far to rest upon us.

Redfield College, Redfield, South Dakota

Redfield College was founded in 1887. The James River Valley was then new territory, and Redfield a town of a few hundred people. The Midland Association of Congregational Churches (now Northern) recommended the establishing of the college, and located it at Redfield because of its central situation and because of $10,000 raised for a college building.

Rev. David Beaton, D.D., was the first president. The college from the first has been missionary in its tendency. The home missionary field, offering opportunity for pioneer work, comes to the very doors of the college.

A large proportion of the students have become ministers and missionaries. Four of the students graduating at the Chicago Theological Seminary are alumni of Redfield. Rev. Robert F. Black, of Davao, Mindanao, Philippine Islands, is also a graduate of Redfield College, as are many home missionaries all over our great Northwest.

Years of drought came in the early years of the history of the college, and in the midst of the bad years the college building was destroyed by fire (1896), but a new one was soon erected and dedicated free of debt.

During the past few months the German-English College of Wilton (Iowa) and Redfield College have been combined. The work of both will be carried on at Redfield, Rev. Herman Seil as president. Two years ago measures were taken to raise an endowment of $50,000. Pledges to this amount have now been secured. In February of this year the Society placed the college on its list.

Redfield College has had a Faculty of self-denying teachers and a board of efficient trustees, who make a fine showing in results achieved.

Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida.

The event of principal importance at Rollins College the present year has been the raising of an endowment fund of $200,000, of which Dr. D. K. Pearsons, of Chicago, the munificent friend of the smaller colleges, gave one-fourth. Of the $150,000 necessary to secure the conditional gift of Dr. Pearsons, $77,700 — something more than half — was given by trustees of the institution and the widow of the gentleman whose name it bears. This endowment fund places the college on a substantial and permanent basis, and greatly diminishes the labor and cost of collecting the money necessary to carry on its work; it is, therefore, a source of profound satisfaction and gratitude to the trustees and friends of the institution. But the income which it may reasonably be expected to yield will not suffice to meet the current expenses of the college, even with the strictest economy and on the present scale of operations. Besides, a deficit which has been accumulating for several years — not large, but still embarrassing — must be met, and an increase of equipment in several directions will be imperatively demanded in the immediate future. The present year every room in all the dormitories was assigned, and in several instances two students had to be placed in rooms intended for but one. The dining hall, which was considerably enlarged at the beginning of the academic year, has been filled. It now seems likely that the institution will be still more crowded the coming year. A new dormitory for men and another for women must be built soon, unless the college is to be compelled to turn away young people who are eager for an education; and a science hall, a library, a chapel, and facilities for the manual, technical, and horticultural training of young men must be provided if adequate and satisfactory work is to be done. For two years training has been offered the young women, without cost to the college, through the efforts of a Ladies' Auxiliary Committee, in basketry, sewing, dressmaking, and cooking, which has been highly appreciated and exceedingly useful. This department of domestic arts should be put on a permanent basis, and expanded so as to include training in the industrial arts for young men.

In view of the large, rapidly growing, and needy population to which it ministers, it is the conviction of the trustees that not less than half a million dollars — more than twice the amount already raised — will be necessary in the near future for additional buildings, equipment, and endowment, if the college is not to be seriously handicapped in the work to which it is manifestly called.

The most exigent need of the institution at present, however, is for money with which to pay its troublesome debt. The Education Society, which has for many years made generous contributions to Rollins, now offers a substantial sum toward ridding us of this encumbrance, conditioned on the raising of the whole amount before the end of the present fiscal year. This task, following almost immediately upon the exhausting effort for endowment, seems almost impossible of accomplishment, yet we cannot believe that the friends of Christian education in the South and in the republic of Cuba will fail us in this emergency. We appeal to them for help.

UTAH

Report of Rev. S. H. Goodwin, Field Superintendent

The attention of the country has been directed to Utah to an unusual degree during the past year in consequence of the ambition of our apostle Senator. Conditions have been disclosed and facts have been made public (not all of which were known even to residents of the state) which have startled the American people. The declarations of President Smith, of the Mormon Church, and of Apostle Lyman, who will be the next president of the church, furnished abundant food for serious reflection. The more recent active and avowed participation of Senator Smoot in state politics, from the primaries of the most remote precincts to the state conventions, where he succeeded, in spite of strongest opposition, in nominating his personal candidate (a hitherto unknown man) for governor, has lifted into prominence the questions of church interference and church dominance. If an apostle of the Mormon Church is to use his great influence as an ecclesiastic to gain political ends and secure the nomination of candidates favorable to his interests, what may not be brought to pass by the powerful hierarchy of the Mormon Church in the same direction?

The answer to that question is another story, but the "point of contact" is this: whatever else may have been accomplished by the revelations of the past year, this much is certain, those disclosures have given added emphasis to the need, not only of maintaining our work in this state, but also of enlarging and strengthening it. The forces which make for good citizenship and for righteousness are not so numerous or so powerful that any of them can be dispensed with. Especially is this true of our school work, for we are accomplishing results that can be secured in no other way. Our schools stand for a law-abiding, a Christian citizenship, and this is of the greatest importance in view of the fact that we have daily papers which openly advise their readers to disobey laws which happen to be obnoxious to a considerable number of people.

And not only do our schools stand for obedience to law and for civic righteousness, but in most instances they are the only agencies for the diffusion of the gospel in the communities in which they are located. The extent to which this is true and the significance of this feature of our work may be gathered from the following facts:

The Bountiful school is in the midst of one of the most fertile regions in Utah, with prosperous farmers and fruit growers everywhere. This school, with its Christian teacher and Sunday school, represents the only evangelical forces in that community.

The Coalville school is in a coal mining community, which, like Bountiful, is overwhelmingly Mormon. Here we have a Christian teacher and a Sunday school; the nearest evangelical work is twenty-two miles distant.

The Heber school, with its two teachers and Sunday school, is in an agricultural district. The town has the name of being one of the most "hidebound" Mormon communities in the state; the president of the stake (which in this case includes the county) is openly hostile to our work. No evangelical Christian work nearer than Park City, fifteen miles away.

Lehi, strongly Mormon; our school has three teachers, who, in addition to other work, carry on a Sunday school, and the principal preaches on Sunday evenings. No other Christian work nearer than American Fork, six miles away.

Vernal, largely Mormon; our school, opened September, 1903, has two teachers who coöperate in the work of a recently organized Congregational church. This school is in a beautiful valley, cut off from the railroad by one hundred and twenty miles of desert; the only Christian work in Uinta County, as the Heber school is the only work of the kind in Wasatch County. These two counties cover an area 108 by 138 miles in extent.

The other two schools — Gordon Academy, Salt Lake City, and Procter Academy, Provo — are differently situated. One-half of the population of Salt Lake is Gentile. In Provo eighty-five per cent are Mormons. Here, too, is the largest of the Mormon schools, the Brigham Young Academy, and the public schools are fully controlled by the dominant church. There are, however, four Gentile teachers in the city schools, all members of our Congregational Church, and three of the four are recent graduates of Procter Academy!

Situated as these schools are, in the midst of communities in which, at any time — and for purely selfish ends — the will of one man may become a law, more binding than any other, to tens of thousands of people; with views on social and religious questions everywhere prevailing which are subversive of the high ideals that are the priceless heritage of our people; with open and repeated violations of the laws of the land not only winked at but applauded by many; with teachings from the pulpit and in the press which tend to foster disregard of law, not infrequently advising such disregard — confronted by such conditions, the need and value of our work are manifest; and these conditions determine what shall be the character and scope of the work.

In meeting the obligations thus imposed, it has been the constant aim of those who have been directing this work to make our schools better than the best of the local public schools of the same grades by securing the services of college trained, thoroughly equipped teachers. At the same time the main object to be accomplished has been kept clearly in mind. That object, as defined in the terms of the Charter of the New West Education Commission, is,

"The promotion of Christian civilization in Utah . . . by the education of the children and youth under Christian teachers, and also by the use of such kindred agencies as may be at any time deemed desirable."

Bountiful

Enrollment, forty-six; average, thirty-one; number of grades, six. The attendance would have been larger but for the reason that through the interference of either Mormon relatives or the priesthood six were removed to the public schools.

All text-books, paper, and pencils have been furnished in the public schools of Utah, and that means much to the people, so that the mission schools have required larger appropriations. The pupils have done excellent work this year. More careful and thorough work has been done by teachers because of the somewhat fewer numbers.

The Sunday school has been larger than last year. An assistant from Salt Lake has been called in for Sunday services.

The school is in a hard field. There are some Gentile families here, and our school is all that saves the children of those families from Mormon influences and final absorption in the Mormon body. The school is the only force in this priest-ridden community that makes for righteousness, and that presents high and worthy ideals to any portion of the children and young people in that town. If that were removed, nothing would remain to relieve the dense, gross darkness that shuts down on any people; superstition, low ideals, lax morals, enslaved minds would have no rebuke and no opponent.

Coalville

The total enrollment for the year is forty-eight, with an average attendance of twenty. Of these one is a boarding pupil from Park City, preparing for Gordon Academy. Eight grades are taught besides a kindergarten class. So many women know almost nothing about needlework, it seems well that all our girls who are willing should be instructed. A class in sewing is held.

The Sabbath school has not been as large as it was last year, owing to removals, but a part of the children go to both Sunday schools. Though the children are interested, there is difficulty in keeping a high per cent of attendance this year because of the nearly zero weather in winter and the mud almost a foot deep for six months, at which time the town is full of stagnant water.

Frequently a pupil makes a practical application of the Sunday school lesson. A little fellow of seven was supposed to be very obstinate, but had never shown it at school. He was out of order one day, and was called to the desk. Instead of obeying he clutched his desk with a "This rock shall fly from its firm base as soon as I" expression on his little white face. A few minutes later, when school was dismissed, he was asked to remain. He came to the desk with alacrity, and when questioned as to why he had not minded before explained his conduct by referring to a former lesson, saying he had told old Satan ever so many times to go behind him, but he would not go away for a long time.

The Bible is used a great deal in the day school. Patrons of former days tell how much they are indebted to the Education Society. A few weeks since a parent called on Miss Shute in Ogden, asking her to go to their home instead of remaining at the hotel, and saying they realized what a difference the Society's school had made in the lives of their young people, and felt that they could hardly do enough for us.

Heber

Enrollment for the year, seventy-seven; average attendance, forty-five; eight grades taught. This has been an uneventful year. The school has had much to contend with. A severe epidemic of measles in the winter and another of whooping cough in May reduced the numbers greatly.

The school has had far more opposition from the Mormon Church to encounter this year than ever before. One of the leading Mormons recently remarked, "You must obey the commands of President —— as you would those of God himself." With this reiterated at private and public meetings, and with a president who considers all Gentiles, mission teachers especially, as emissaries of Satan, and takes pains to threaten every family who send children to the school, what can be expected?

Two of last year's ninth grade pupils have been in Utah University this year, another in the Presbyterian Collegiate Institute. Two more have been hard at work, hoping to go away to one of our college preparatory schools next fall. A number of families who removed their children from our school in the fall, through the intervention of the church, have been much dissatisfied with their progress at the public school and promise to return them to us another year.

On the whole we have no occasion for discouragement. The need is great as ever.

Lehi

Total enrollment, ninety-five; average attendance, forty-six and one-third; number of grades taught, nine. Many of the pupils, especially boys in grades four to seven, did not enter until about December and left about April 1. Hence the low averages.

This school completed its year on May 23. At the closing exercises more than one hundred people were present, among them the mayor of Lehi, members of the public school board, and teachers in the public schools. In the social hour which followed the exercises, many expressed themselves as well pleased with what they had seen and heard.

During the year ninety-five young lives have been touched and enlightened and made better through the work of this school. The activities of a social settlement house resemble the work the teachers are doing in this and similar schools. Evening gatherings for pupils and friends of the work, a girls' club, a boys' club, frequent visits in the homes, gifts of clothing to the more needy (through the kindness of Eastern friends), kindly and helpful social service in countless ways — this in combination with school, church, and Sunday school work tells of the varied avenues of usefulness which our teachers find.

The result of the work is a large general improvement in the lives which are influenced. Life is broadened; narrow and ignoble views of religion are revised and liberalized; new standards and ideals are established. A sense of the value and importance of this work in Utah grows on those who are engaged in it.

In an American history class the reasons were being given why the Puritans came to New England. A bright girl naïvely inquired, "Was not the religion of England at that time Mormonism?" Inquiry brought out the fact that she supposed Mormonism had been and is the prevailing religion of the world.

At the graduating exercises of the public schools two weeks ago, a boy, giving a history of Lehi, referred to us in these terms: "The New West Education Society of Salt Lake operates a branch institution at Lehi. The principal is Rev.," etc.

Vernal

This is a village many miles from a railroad. The total enrollment for the year has been sixty-four; the average attendance, thirty-three. Seven grades have been taught; there has been but one teacher.

Prospects for another year seem very bright. There is a promise of a number of new pupils. Every one is anxious that the higher grades be taught, and many pupils could be secured who now go to Salt Lake for the ninth and tenth grade work. It is expected that a teacher of energy and ability will be sent, for there is more work than two people can do.

During the year enough money has been collected from the patrons of the school to pay the rent, buy coal, and a few new books as they were needed. Should the higher grades be taught next year, it will be possible to collect a much larger sum of money. Possibly a third teacher may be engaged for at least a part of the year. One will be very greatly needed. The public school is not at all satisfactory, and an attempt will be made to gain pupils now while there is so little opportunity for them to be educated elsewhere.

Several young ladies have asked for an algebra class during the summer. They have been attending the Mormon Academy, but it is an inferior institution.

NEW MEXICO

Report of Rev. J. H. Heald, Field Superintendent

THE past year has been one of the most pleasant and successful in the history of our school work in New Mexico. Despite the fact that five of the teachers were new to the field, the work has been maintained at a high degree of excellence. It would be difficult to speak too highly of the devotion, energy, and efficiency of our teaching force. One needs character and ability to be a successful teacher in the New Mexican mission field. No matter how great one's resources may be, the work taxes them to the utmost. Many of our teachers finish the school year bankrupt in physical strength, and need the summer months to recruit their energies for another year's struggle.

During the past year more than five hundred children have come under the influence of our mission schools. One of the problems with which we are constantly struggling, with only partial success, is to secure regular and continued attendance. It is to be borne in mind that, except in cases of a few well-to-do families, this is the first generation to attend school. It is difficult for them to appreciate the importance of regular attendance. Yet it would be a mistake to suppose that those who are in school but a short time receive small benefit. A young Mexican recently married said to me with evident pride, "My wife is a well-educated woman; she attended your school in C——." On inquiry of the teacher in C—— I learned that she had been in school about two weeks, off and on. After all, I am inclined to think there is a great difference between two weeks of school and none. There is no doubt that those two weeks will make a difference in the entire life of that woman. She got at least one glimpse of something better and higher than the life about her.

We are well pleased with the progress made by the children in our schools during the past year. A man once entered one of our schools, and looking disdainfully about him exclaimed, "Mexicans! can they learn anything?" We are often asked similar questions. I wish to answer that the Mexican children can learn. Bearing constantly in mind the fact that this is the first generation to have the privilege of schooling, we cannot expect them to be so apt as the children of more favored races. In many cases it takes time to awaken the dormant faculties. Yet two experienced primary teachers who entered our work this year express themselves as agreeably surprised by the brightness of the Mexican children. The fact is that the Mexican children respond to good teaching. They need help, especially in getting started in the road to knowledge. Most any kind of a teacher will not do in our work. We need experts. An acquaintance lately expressed regret that one of our teachers who has an education qualifying her to take a high position should be throwing away her acquirements on the Mexicans. But, as a matter of fact, there is no place where first-class ability is more necessary or more effective. Some friends of mine visited a public school in one of our villages not long since. The teacher was an American (and not a Mexican, as is usually the case in the country districts), but one, unfortunately, whose chief interest in the school was in drawing the salary. He said to the visitors: "I don't waste much energy on these children. They can't learn anything anyway. I say, 'Children' (with a wave of the hand toward a map), 'this is the map of the United States.' That is all the geography they need to know. Now I will show you how finely they can spell. Juan, spell dog. 'C–a–t,' says Juan." "Good," says the teacher. "Francisco, spell rat." "M–a–n," says Francisco. "Excellent!" says the master; then to the visitors:

"You see what brilliant minds these children have. It is no use to waste time on them." Is it any wonder if with such teaching, struggling as they do with the difficulties of an unknown tongue, the children make little headway? In that same town we have a school, and we are not ashamed to show any visitor (nor need the children be) the results of our work. All have made creditable, and some remarkable, progress for the time they have been in school.

In the short time we can keep the children in school we cannot hope to give them a finished education, but we are developing the ancestors of better generations to come. The girls marry young, and we are already beginning to see our children's children in school. In one village some sixteen girls who have been in our school have married. The teacher tells me that with one exception these girls are honest, faithful wives. In a community where many live together without even being married, and where marital fidelity is the exception rather than the rule, this means a great deal. To one who came from a distance, without previous knowledge of the local conditions, it might not seem that we have made great progress. To us who have known the country for years the changes seem vast, and we are encouraged to look forward with a sure faith to the better days to come. True we see before us long years of arduous toil, but now that the Industrial School for which we have so long labored and prayed has become one of the assured realities of the near future, we know that our labors will not be in vain. We shall be able to give the chosen ones of our children a training that will fit them to become the leaders of their people. Surely there is a future for the Mexican people, and we have a share in making it bright.

Atrisco

The enrollment of this school this year has been fifty-two; the average attendance, eighteen; first to fifth grades. The average seems small, but it is on account of the children being kept out to work in the early fall and spring months, which cuts general average down so much.

The teachers report a satisfactory class of children this year, and the work in general has gone well. Beside Sunday school and church services, house-to-house prayer meetings have been held. The meetings have been at the home of a Protestant family. They take such interest in inviting neighbors and friends that their small room is full to overflowing. This family has not been Protestant very long, but the change is really marvelous. Three years ago they had absolutely nothing in their house. The children were ragged, dirty, and hungry, and the father in a chronic state of drunkenness. Since they were converted they have bought a small piece of land and built a neat little home, and have it comfortably furnished. The children are clean, and have enough to eat and wear.

The Mexicans cling to the religion of their fathers. A man whose wife is a member of our church told the teacher in confidence that he really believed as we do, but that his mother was a very old woman, and he would not join the Protestant church as long as she lived. However, he is friendly and attends the services.

Two of our Protestant children died of diphtheria this year, and they had to go to Albuquerque for burial, as there was no Protestant cemetery here; but our people awakened to the need, and at once opened a cemetery of their own.

Barelas

Enrolled, one hundred and twenty-five; average attendance, thirty; four grades.

Barelas is in the outskirts of Albuquerque. Some of the people are sheep herders, some work in the brickyards, and many in the Santa Fé Railroad shops, and as a rule come in contact with the objectionable class of Americans. Our teachers have access to every home, and call often in a friendly way. Twelve or fourteen pupils entered our school who began the year in the Catholic schools.

There has been but little sickness. Not a death among the children, and but few among the older people. One death-bed scene occurred within fifty yards of our school. A man who had been confined to his bed eight months with consumption was converted to Protestantism. One brother was a Protestant, but he had two brothers, a father, and wife who are rigid Catholics. When he was dying, they tried to force him to hold a candle in his hand and say he wanted to confess to the priest. The Protestant brother told them not to force him to do that, but if he wanted the priest he would go and get him; but he did not want him. The Catholics became enraged and threatened to kill this Protestant brother. Another Catholic who stood near said to them: "Is that what your religion teaches you? If so, the Protestant religion is better." They called him a "Protestante" (which is an insult to the Catholics). Since then he has attended the Protestant meetings regularly, and asked for a Bible. The teachers were unsuccessful in their attempt to give this body a Protestant funeral and burial, but attended the Catholic burial and saw the brother refuse to sprinkle the "holy water" on the corpse when the priest requested him to.

These poor people have been long kept in darkness. For instance, it has been very dry and the sheep and goats are dying by the hundred for want of water and grass, and the priest is asking them to pay him an enormous price to pray for rain. Of course he knows it is the time of year now for it, and will doubtless come soon, but they will pay him nevertheless. When diphtheria rages, they pay him a big price to pray for it to be stopped. The Protestants quarantine and treat them, and the priest gets the credit.

Some of the little children have never known anything but to drink and smoke, and their little systems are full of nicotine. One morning one of our teachers noticed that a little boy's eye was bruised and his face swollen. She said, "Why, Lorenzo, what is the matter with your eye?" His head dropped and he made no reply, but almost every child in the room shouted, "Drunk! teacher, drunk!" She said, "No, don't say that Lorenzo has been drunk." But they insisted that he had. She put her arm around him and said, "Lorenzo, were you drunk yesterday?" and he said, "Yessum." On making inquiry regarding it, she learned that the people had made a feast in honor of naming a new baby, and that the men had made two of the boys drunk to see them dance, but had given Lorenzo too much, and he had fallen against a door and bruised his face. These people are in great need of spiritual and moral help.

Cubero

Enrollment, sixty-two; average attendance, thirty; six grades besides kindergarten.

It will doubtless be interesting to know that six pupils have been enrolled from the public school since that school closed in April. These pupils are all from families which have never permitted children to attend our school in previous years. The change is a very marked concession to the superiority of our work, which we hope to prove to the satisfaction of the new patrons, if we are allowed to retain these children under our care.

Another noteworthy sign of progress is the fact that the teachers have succeeded in guiding the play of boys and girls in their teens together on the playground in such a manner as not only to avoid criticism or scandal, but to meet with the approbation of the parents. This is a greater success than could have been anticipated.

The testimony of a merchant (a German Jew with strict Jewish ideas) is to the effect that the mission school is a great factor in restraining the lawless element and in strengthening the better element in their endeavor to be law-abiding.

At least one father is looking forward anxiously for the opening of our industrial school. His anxiety is shared keenly by the teachers, who feel that this promising boy is at that crisis in his life when he needs to be placed among different associates in a purer atmosphere if he is to be saved from a degraded life.

The outlook for the Cubero school has never been so full of promise as now.

San Mateo

Enrollment, one hundred and four; average attendance, forty-four; three grades.

The Mexican people have suffered at the hands of a few unscrupulous leaders of their race, and are now beginning to realize their condition. One's sympathy is aroused and drawn on daily, and yet the mission teacher is powerless in so many cases to right the wrongs. Many a family lies down to rest at night with hunger, and rises in the morning to partake of a limited breakfast of warmed-over coffee and hard tortillas.

Some one must help these people to rise, teach them to walk, lead them in paths of justice, honesty, and truth. They have not as yet a Booker Washington among them, but time will bring a true leader. Until that time comes, help must come from outside. They need men who understand law and would deal justly with them; they need doctors to heal their sick, nurses to care for the suffering. The girls need to be taught sewing, cooking, and housekeeping. The boys need to be taught agriculture, so that the most can be gotten out of the bit of land that is theirs. And imperatively do they need men of God to lead their benighted souls out of the darkness into the glorious light of his love. An industrial training school is the crying need.

May each one who professes to love and serve the Christ realize that he is responsible in a measure for the above conditions.

San Rafael

In the two departments of this school ninety-one scholars were enrolled in seven grades. Many of these attend but a fraction of the year; but they attach so much importance to the time they spend with us that, if they have attended no more than one week, they proudly boast that they belong to our school.

These children come from Roman Catholic families, and most of them from homes where no English is spoken. For this reason both English and Spanish are taught, in most cases beginning the study of both languages at the same time, though in the first grade more time is given to the study of English. When the parent discovers that his son can read and write a letter in his native tongue, his pride and delight are a pleasure to witness. The correct use of English is a matter of more time. The children soon learn to understand the language of the schoolroom, but they are timid about trying to speak English themselves; and as they must speak Spanish at home, progress is naturally slow. Spelling and reading in both languages, and translation from the one to the other, are taught every day; but all the instruction and study in numbers and geography are from English text-books, the teacher helping out with such explanations in Spanish as are necessary. The highest grade have English and Spanish language study on alternate days.

The mission has been delightfully remembered by its friends this year. Many encouraging letters have been received from those interested in our work. Money to purchase articles greatly needed has been donated, also money for the support of the missionary horse. Generous Christmas boxes for the use of both school and teachers were received, and wall paper for two rooms.

The highest classes in English have been taught through the entire year by the assistant teacher, thus giving the older pupils a chance for intimate acquaintance with both teachers. They seem to enjoy this arrangement.

The schoolhouse has been enlarged by the addition of a room for the primary department, of equal size with the old room. This long-prayed-for addition was made possible by the kindness of Miss Hester's home church in Cole Camp, Missouri, which contributed half its cost.

Through all the work of this year, plans for the future have been forming; so while we close this year with thankfulness, we also look forward to the next with hope.

Seboyeta

The enrollment was ninety-three; average attendance, fifty.

As this is a new school, most of the pupils are in the first or second grade; however, there are pupils in every grade up to the eighth. During the winter months the daily average attendance was almost seventy, but in the spring the older boys and girls had to leave school to herd sheep on the mountains, thus lowering the average for the year.

Our teachers receive kind and courteous treatment from the people. Just one incident to illustrate. At Christmas time, when people were holding their annual feast, the priest asked the teachers to lend their organ. Of course they did so, but one rich man in the church said that he did not want one of them to play the organ because they were Protestants; but to show that he had nothing especially against them he invited them to his home to a banquet after the services in the church. The teachers accepted the invitation, and were escorted from the church to the banquet hall by the priest and the host. As they entered the room where the tables were groaning under their delicious burdens, a band of musicians were playing a jig, a very lively jig; but when they saw us the tune changed and they played, "I want to be an angel." We were seated around the table; the liquors (for which our host had spent many dollars, for they were the finest) were passed, but we turned our glasses down. The priest turned his glass down; the next man turned his glass down, and the next and next, until there was not one drop of liquor tasted in our presence.

With such experiences, do you blame us for falling in love with our people? Though the year has been one of hard work and many trying experiences, it has also been a truly blessed one.

STUDENT AID

This Society was organized in 1815 for the purpose of aiding worthy and pious young men to the gospel ministry.

That the need of recruiting the ranks of the ministry of that day was pressing is evident from the fact that eight young Christian laymen — whose names unfortunately are not preserved — were the pioneers in the movement resulting in the organization of this Society.

At the present time there is a growing conviction that a similar need exists, and that something must be done to draw well-equipped young men into this highest of callings. Large city churches of all denominations find it difficult to secure preachers acceptable to the people. The small churches, especially in rural districts, West as well as East, are suffering from a lack of consecrated and able men willing to live upon small salaries.

The Student Volunteer Movement for foreign missions should be matched by an effort to secure self-denying young men for the pulpits of the home land. If our home churches lack wise leaders and able preachers, it will not be long before our spiritual life will fail to produce consecrated missionaries for the foreign field.

Who will inaugurate a "Movement to Secure Preachers and Pastors for the Churches of America?" The time is ripe for such an organization.

Shall New England become Roman Catholic? Shall the foreign-speaking peoples of the Northwest be neglected? Shall the religion of southern Europe become the religion of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania? These are pertinent questions in view of the rapidly increasing immigration. Nothing will prevent it if the Protestant church allows its pulpit to deteriorate and its religious teachers to become unequal to the task of ethical leadership.

The Education Society encourages men of the right sort to enter the gospel ministry, and it relies on the Faculties of our colleges and seminaries to recommend only such men as are fitted for this work. The aid offered to each student is not so large as to preclude the necessity of self-help. It offers no bonus to the idle and lazy, to seek the ministry as a last resort. The Education Society recognizes the pressing problem at hand and calls for the awakening of the church to a wise solution.

THE WORK OF THE WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY ORGANIZATIONS THROUGH THE EDUCATION SOCIETY

THE most cordial recognition is given of the substantial aid received from the woman's organizations of the country.

From Florida to Washington gifts have been made for our work; in many instances the entire salaries of teachers have been paid by individual unions.

The total receipts for the year were $13,506.79, an increase of $1,829.72 over last year; the gains being principally in Massachusetts and the Western unions. The money received from these societies goes, for the most part, to support mission schools in Utah and New Mexico. In selecting these fields for their gifts, the women show a grasp of the home missionary situation, and a wise discernment of the demands of the hour. In home and school women are the efficient teachers of women and youth, and it is natural that their gifts should follow the leadings of their intelligence and affection.

It is an encouraging sign that the women in our Western churches are increasing their gifts, which is an indication of a quickening and widening of their missionary zeal.

They shall determine what institutions shall be aided, and shall grant them money as the state of the treasury may permit. They may by vote authorize the sale or conveyance of any real estate the Society may own, to such person or persons and upon such terms as they may determine; such conveyances to be signed, executed, acknowledged, and delivered in the name of and in behalf of the Society by the President and Treasurer, as hereinbefore provided. They shall have authority to make such rules as they may deem best in regard to the calling of meetings of the Board and the number that shall constitute a quorum; to choose an Institutions Committee and a Student Aid Committee, upon whose recommendations the Board may take such action as they may judge expedient; to appoint a Finance Committee, one of whose duties shall be the making of investments. They shall also have power to appoint District or Field Secretaries, or establish any agency which they may consider necessary, and shall have power to fill, until the next annual meeting, any vacancy in their own number or in any office of the Society. The Board of Directors shall present a report of the work of the Society at each annual meeting. The meetings of the Board shall ordinarily be held in Boston. At least one meeting in each year shall be held in Chicago. All meetings shall be held in the office of the Society, either at Boston or Chicago, unless otherwise ordered.

ARTICLE XI

AMENDMENTS

This Constitution may be changed by a vote of two-thirds of the members present and entitled to vote at any meeting of the Society duly called and organized, notice of the proposed change being given in the call of the meeting at which action is to be taken.

RULES OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

ADOPTED SEPTEMBER 12, 1904

RULE 1. Organization. The Board of Directors shall assemble for organization on the Monday after the annual meeting of the Society, notice of the meeting being sent by the Secretary of the Society. They shall elect by ballot a Chairman and a Clerk, a Finance Committee, an Institutions Committee, a Student Aid Committee, each of which shall have six members, besides the President and Vice-President, who shall be ex officiis members of all committees.

RULE 2. Meetings. The Directors shall hold regular meetings on the second Monday of each month, excepting that the August meeting may be omitted by vote of the Directors. Special meetings shall be called at the written request of three Directors, by giving three days' notice, by letter, to each member of the Board, stating the time, place, and object of the meeting. Seven Directors shall constitute a quorum.

RULE 3. Committees. Within two weeks after the election of the Finance, Institutions, and Student Aid Committees a meeting of each of them shall be held in Boston, at which a Chairman and a Clerk shall be elected by ballot. Such meeting shall be called by the Clerk of the Board of Directors, who shall notify each member seven days, at least, before the meeting. Each of said committees shall hold a regular monthly meeting, except in August, and the Clerk's records and all reports or abstracts of them, or copy of them, shall be kept in the rooms of the Society, in the care of the Secretary, and be open to the examination of the Directors. Other meetings of any of the said committees shall be held whenever the Chairman or any two members shall so request the Clerk in writing, provided notice of the time and place of the meeting is mailed or delivered to each member one day, at least, before the meeting. At any of the meetings aforesaid three members shall constitute a quorum.

RULE 4. Finance Committee. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to cause to be kept a book, wherein shall be set forth in detail: (1) all stocks and bonds owned by the Society, at par, with a statement of the original cost of the same to the Society; (2) all real estate (both land and buildings) and other property of the Society, with the full cost of the same; and (3) all property held on special deposit or in trust. This book shall be at all times open to the inspection of any member of the Board of Directors, and the record shall be so amended from time to time, under the direction of the Finance Committee, as to show at all times a correct statement of the property of the Society and of any special trusts in its hands. All title deeds to real estate, mortgages, insurance policies, and certificates of stocks and bonds owned by the Society shall be in the care and custody of the Treasurer, under the direction of this committee, who shall provide a proper place for their safe keeping. They shall also, when occasion requires, direct the sale and transfer of stocks, bonds or mortgages, invest any surplus, or other specific funds of the Society, and in general, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors, shall have the charge of the Society's financial concerns not otherwise provided for. But no investment shall be made without the approval by affirmative vote, or in writing, if otherwise, of at least four members of the committee. The chairman of the committee shall approve all bills before payment thereof by the Treasurer.

RULE 5. Institutions Committee. The Institutions Committee shall keep a book of all institutions aided by the Society and the amount granted to each, and make recommendations to the Directors of the institutions which should receive aid. The committee may also be divided into subcommittees, who may investigate and advise upon particular institutions intrusted to them.

RULE 6. The Student Aid Committee. The Student Aid Committee shall keep a book, containing the names of all students aided by the Society and the amount of the several grants; also recommend to the Directors those whom they approve for aid. The committee may likewise be divided into subcommittees for purposes of investigation and advice.

RULE 7. Western Members. The Western members will be expected to give counsel upon the appropriation of money for such academies and schools, and they shall once, at least, each year transmit to the Board at Boston a summary statement of the condition and requirements of the Society's work, as viewed by them, and this statement shall be a special topic of consideration at the first meeting of the Board after its reception.

No action shall be taken at a meeting held in either section of the country in respect to which the judgment of the members resident in the other section is specially needed, unless seasonable notice shall have been given that such action is contemplated.

A full and attested copy of the record of each meeting of the Board of Directors held in Boston shall be immediately forwarded to Chicago, and shall be either filed or transcribed in such a manner as to form a permanent record at Chicago; and an attested record of the doings of each meeting of the Board held at Chicago shall be entered upon the permanent record of the Board in Boston. A summary statement of the business done at each meeting of the members of the Western section of the Board shall also be promptly transmitted to Boston.

RULE 8. Absences. Any Eastern Director who shall be absent from one-third of the stated meetings of the Board held during any one year at Boston, or any Western Director who shall be absent from one-third of the stated meetings held during any one year at Chicago, including the meetings of the Board and of the Western section of the Board, unless excused for such absence for adequate reason by the Board or its Western section, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have vacated his office as Director, and the vacancy thus created shall be filled by the election of some other person at the next annual meeting of the Society.

RULE 9. Grants to Students. Applications for scholarships granted by this Society to students for the ministry are approved under the following rules and conditions.

(a) The Society wishes to aid young men of ability and promise who are studying in preparation for the ministry, and who are in need of assistance. The Directors rely largely upon the men themselves, who are thus aided, for assurance that their need of help is real, that they are prudent, economical in the use of money, and that they are shaping their habits of life in a manner becoming to those who are to be teachers and leaders in the Christian church, and specifically abstaining from the use of intoxicants and tobacco.

(b) To receive a grant a student in college must have reached the grade of sophomore, and must have maintained a standard in scholarship of seventy-five per cent, or an equivalent degree under varying marking systems. A beneficiary in a theological seminary must be a graduate of some college of good standing, or a man of such qualifications and promise as may largely compensate for the lack of a college course. The Directors may make grants in special cases to students outside these regular classifications.

(c) It is optional with the student whether the grant be a loan or a gift. If taken as a loan the student shall forward his note for the amount. Such notes, if paid within three years after entering the ministry, shall bear no interest, but from that time they shall bear interest at three per cent.

(d) Scholarships are assigned for one year only. Renewal must be secured by a new application each year, but may not be obtained beyond six consecutive years. The amount of the regular scholarship at present is fifty (50) dollars per annum, payable in two equal installments, December 1 and April 1. Applications should be forwarded to the Secretary before November 1 or March 1.

(e) The Board of Directors shall appoint examining committees, consisting of three persons each at different institutions, throughout the country to make careful inquiry concerning the applicant's religious character, credentials, his motives for seeking the ministry, his abilities, attainments, and promise, also his need of pecuniary aid and his willingness to conform to the rules of the Society. The Directors must depend almost entirely upon the personal estimates which are furnished by the committees appointed for that purpose in the colleges and seminaries with which these students are connected, therefore they expect that these estimates are prepared with carefulness from individual knowledge, and express distinctly the personal judgment of those from whom they come. If the committee decide to recommend an applicant they shall direct him to state in the form of application his name, age, residence, place of education, church membership, need of assistance, and any other facts which may be deemed important.

If there is no regular examining committee in the institution which a student desiring assistance is attending, the Secretary of the Society may be notified of his wish for assistance and a special committee be appointed to examine him.

(f) Before receiving a grant the applicant must give expression to his purpose of devoting his life to the Christian ministry and of taking a full course of theological education, promising that if he shall change his purpose of entering the ministry, he will, within three years after the date of the latest payment, and unless especially released by the Directors for good reasons shown, repay to the Society the whole amount of money received, with three per cent interest on the same from the time of receiving it.

(g) The income which shall provide for the payment of scholarships shall be derived from the interest upon invested funds given for this purpose, and from the gifts of the churches and of special friends for the same object. A gift of one thousand dollars ($1,000), constituting a permanent fund, of which the interest alone shall be used, shall bear the name of the donor, or such name as he may assign. The income of such a fund shall be at once and perpetually applied to the support of a student in prosecuting his studies for the ministry. Such a donor may name a student as the recipient of such a scholarship, provided his application is duly made and approved according to the regulations of the Society. The Society will act as the almoner for any benevolent individuals who desire to assist worthy young men to prepare for the ministry or to procure a Christian education, and will take charge of any funds intrusted to it for this purpose, applying them for the objects and persons designated.

RULE 10. Grants to Institutions. The rules and conditions under which the Society will aid an institution are:

1. It must present to the Directors a certified copy of its act of incorporation.

2. A certified copy of its by-laws.

3. The names of its trustees and number of its students of its several classes.

4. An abstract of title of the property to be covered by mortgage.

5. It must have secured in fee simple and unencumbered, sufficient ground for buildings and campus and assets in buildings, or in money, or in both, to the amount of $5,000.

6. No appropriation voted by the Board of Directors is payable to any institution which shall not prior to such payment have furnished to the Secretary evidence that the property is adequately insured.

7. The institution must be indorsed by the State Association or Conference of the Congregational churches, and by the local Association or Conference within the bounds of whose territory it is located, and it must annually report to the State Association or Conference and have the continued approval of the same so long as it receives aid from the Society.

8. No college will be aided until it has a freshman class of at least four students, and all other institutions must have such a number of students and such status as shall afford evidence of permanency. Every academy must be prepared to give thorough preparation for college.

9. It shall be the duty of the president or principal of each institution that receives aid from the Society to report to the Directors at least annually the financial condition of the institution, the number of its students, and all such facts in regard to its prosperity as it may be desirable for the Directors to know.

10. As the preparation, execution, and approval of the papers require time, the institution should notify the Board of Directors of this Society when the institution will be ready for the payment, and should forward papers named above three months before payment is expected to be made.

11. The time for the Board of Directors voting upon applications for current expenses is their regular meeting on the second Monday in June.

12. Application for aid must be made by a formal vote of corporate board of trustees of the institution, who must also give to this Society a first mortgage, with the usual covenants and power to foreclose (unless such action be illegal by the laws of the state), which must also be recorded, on its building and real estate to cover the sum which has been given or may be given to this institution, in case of a failure to carry out the conditions upon which such appropriations are made, namely:

(a) The institution must be and continue under the control of a self-perpetuating board of trustees, a majority of whom shall always be members in good and regular standing in a Congregational church.

(b) Every school and college aided by this Society must maintain the characteristics of a vitally Christian institution. It is expected that special attention will be given to the study of the Bible and to development of Christian character in the pupils, and that every president and principal shall be members of an evangelical church.

(c) All money received from the Society (except such as may have been designated by the donor or by unanimous vote of the Directors for other use) must be applied by the institution to the payment of salaries, to purchase of books, apparatus, or permanent endowment of chairs of instruction according to the instructions of the Directors.

(d) On failure to carry out any of the above named conditions, or in case the trustees in their management of an institution become subject to political or ecclesiastical control other than Congregational, or shall in any way be diverted from the policy of the said Congregational Education Society, as at present defined in its charter and by-laws, the Society may demand repayment of all sums advanced, and enter and foreclose their mortgage on the property.

13. In order to secure the early occupation of promising fields, and also to exert a more direct influence through the agency of Christian education in sections not yet provided with good common schools, this Society may establish and temporarily maintain academies, training and other schools in localities where it would not be possible or advisable to create local corporations. These it may own, manage, and control, with the ultimate purpose of placing them under the care of self-perpetuating boards of trustees or of disposing of them as the best interests of Christian education may seem to demand.

14. All institutions aided by the Society, either through their federation with the Society by states or by direct grants from the general fund, shall be treated as institutions under the care of the Society. The Society may also act as almoner for individual donors to institutions in the above classes and for other specified Congregational institutions.

RULE 11. Amendments. These rules may be changed by a two-thirds vote of those present and voting at any regular meeting of the Directors, notice of the proposed amendment having been given in writing at a previous meeting and in the call sent out for such meeting.
